Everyone should have the same right to a good education, but Britain's top universities still accept more students from private schools than state schools. Things are most difficult for students from black working class backgrounds. Universities say that fewer people from these backgrounds apply for their courses. They should ask why! If universities did more to help non-white students and those from state schools, more of them would apply to go there.

In many ways, things have improved a lot for working women over the last 50 years. Today, women can do any job. However, things are still not equal. On average, women are still paid 20 percent less than men in EU countries. Many of the top jobs go to men. Only six percent of the largest European countries have female bosses.

Ageism means treating someone unfairly because of their age. It makes me really angry. If I'd been younger, I would have got a promotion* at work last year. I am fit and healthy and I do my job better than many of my younger colleagues. People often treat me differently outside work, too. Some are very impatient. Others talk slowly because they think I don't understand.

Violet

I'm a young person with a wheelchair and I don't think people do enough to help disabled people. There are lots of places that I can't visit because there are stairs or the doors aren't wide enough. It's so frustrating! Dad has to drive me to school every day because the local buses aren't suitable for disabled people. People are usually very helpful, but some are rude or impatient because of my wheelchair. If they knew what it was like to be disabled, they might be more polite!

VOCABULARY: *promotion – Beförderung

Which person ...

- 1 thinks they are treated differently because of their age?
- 2 talks about inequality between men and women?
- 3 talks about inequality in education?
- 4 uses a wheelchair?
- 5 thinks that things have improved, but not enough?
- 6 is confident about his/her ability at work?
- 7 has difficulty using public transport?
- 8 thinks that non-white and state school students have a disadvantage?
